Fair processing notice - how the Benefits Service may use your data

Our claim forms for Housing Benefit, Council Tax Support and education benefits explain that the details our customers tell us are confidential and are used for working out and awarding your benefits and support and for getting back any money you owe to the council. These details are also used to ensure we charge the right amount of Council Tax. Your information is covered by the Data Protection Act, which gives you the legal right to correct any information about you which we get wrong. The Act also means we must not give out details about your claim except when we need to do so to sort out your claim. For example, if we pay benefit direct to your landlord we must tell them how much benefit you are entitled to.

However, the law also says that:

- we (the council) must protect the public funds we handle; and
- we may share information that is given to us with other organisations that inspect or handle public funds, to prevent and detect fraud. Examples are the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP), HM Revenue & Customs, and auditors who are appointed to check the council's accounts.

Computerised data matching

Computerised data matching is comparing computer records held by one organisation with other computer records held by the same organisation or a different one. This is usually personal information. It allows us to identify claims and payments that may be fraudulent. A match means that there is an inconsistency between the two sets of records that needs investigating. The inconsistency may be because of fraud, error or another explanation. We cannot decide which until we investigate.

The DWP is also responsible for carrying out data matching exercises and the council has to give information to the DWP for those exercises. The law says that the DWP has legal powers to use data in data matching exercises and that it does not have to get the agreement of the people whose details are being matched. You can find out more about the kinds of data the DWP require, together with their code of practice for data matching, in their guidance at <https://www.gov.uk/guidance/national-fraud-initiative-additional-public-services>

Data sharing with credit reference agencies

We may also share information with a credit reference agency to prevent and detect fraud. The council currently gives information to a credit reference agency to carry out data matching to check whether there are other adults in your household you have not told us about.

Other ways we may use your details

As well as sharing details with the DWP and other organisations that inspect or handle public funds, we may also use our customers' details within the council for

- keeping the electoral roll right;
- collecting debts owed to the council (for example council rents and Council Tax); and
- preventing and detecting fraud and other crime.
